The world has been experiencing various environmental problems. Therefore, the plans and strategies in environment have remained paper tiger since the attempt towards their implementation has not realized yet. In this regard, this publication presents the perception of local community on decentralised forest administration in the analysis area. Moreover, numerous literatures display that environmental deterioration provides been increasing at alarming rate and hence world inhabitants have greatly affected by poverty and related plight. As a response to these ill environmental administration, various international agreements had been signed by UN member states. Ethiopia also signed these agreements and produced them part of domestic laws. The paradox, nevertheless, is that environmental depletion mainly deforestation of forest has been installation. These problems have dominated world mass media because of their catastrophic and increasing nature. The environmental problems mainly climatic change, deforestation and flood have resulted due to improper utilization of organic resource. The book is essential for practitioners, experts and researchers in the area.
