Tag Twain once famously said "there is but one solitary issue about the past worth remembering, and that was the fact that it is past and can not be restored. There are now 65,000 titles available (that's an unbelievable 25 million pages) of material ranging from functions by famous names such as Dickens, Trollope and Hardy as well as many forgotten literary gems , all of which can now be printed on demand and purchased the following on Amazon." Well, over recent years, The British Library, working with Microsoft has embarked on an ambitious programme to digitise its collection of 19th century books. Further information on The British Library and its digitisation programme can be found about The British Library website.
