Tag Twain once famously said "there was but one solitary thing about the past worth remembering, and that was the actual fact that it's past and can't be restored. There are now 65,000 titles available (that's an incredible 25 million pages) of material ranging from functions by famous names such as Dickens, Trollope and Hardy as well as many forgotten literary gems , which can now be printed in demand and purchased right here on Amazon." Well, over recent years, The British Library, dealing with Microsoft has embarked on an ambitious programme to digitise its collection of 19th hundred years books. Further information about The British Library and its own digitisation programme can be found about The British Library website.
