Chef Rafael ran a seafood restaurant in Pucusana, Peru. This story may be the initial in the Exploring Blockchain series discovering the potential usage of the emerging blockchain technology in a interpersonal and cultural context. One day Chef Rafael learned what sort of transparent food source chain would provide benefits such as for example food safety, fresh meals, less food waste materials and food fraud, and he envisioned building such a network for his cafe.. In order to source substances for his restaurant, in addition to the fishermen, he also relied on a network of suppliers, made up of local farmers, artisans, and manufacturers, that spread over the rich geography of Peru, including portions of the Andes mountains and the Amazon rainforest..
