Privacy matters! This publication helps give a synopsis of what privacy is normally and means, what stuff are vulnerable, what technology can be found to secure your unique data and how to utilize them to create a vault of your to protect those specific stuff that you need to protect. Keeping things private in this world of most pervasive technologies isn't only essential but it also hard. One has to become disciplined and utilize the right technological tools in order to safeguard those factors most important to you. There exists a lot of stuff we should keep private: PIN numbers, Passwords, Bank account details, Passport info, licence information, address details, assets, relationships merely to mention a couple of things. What's important and should be private is very particular to you the individual. Things near our hearts or issues that require keeping away from prying eyes, electronic surveillance, cameras, credit cards details.!
