This book requires a scientific approach to the study of human development by exploring the chronology of the lifespan through research stories. The primary goal of the book is to help readers learn to be intellectually vital, by reading contemporary study literature on human development and evaluating the assertions that are made. For psychologists, educators, or anyone interested in human development or family members studies. Each of the 32 chapters is another research "story," telling why the study was done, what was done, and what the outcomes reveal about development.
