While others in an organization may look for scape goats, look to place blame or worse yet, fail to recognize their potential, their projects, company and success will suffer. Thanks a lot Mr." and "What may i do to make this situation better? However, why do we often pay more interest of the accountability of everyone else but ourselves where accountability should begin? Worse yet, why do we try so difficult to coerce people to be accountable when we really can't change them?
