Needed reading for victims of domestic abuse I have to cope with a man who's controlling and abusive for another seventeen years because we share a child. This publication has been very helpful in reminding me not to get swept up in the smoke cigarettes and mirrors he uses to try and break me down, never to go back during the "nice" section of the routine because it's just a game for him, and how to make sure my kid isn't damaged by his inability to like. When someone devotes all their mental energy trying to tear you down, steal your joy, and make you issue everything because you have been lied to so often, you need to realize what they are doing and have a constant reminder that the problem is with them, not you, and you aren't alone. I enjoyed it so much I added the Audible feature to it and also have read it more often than once taking notes and highlighting sections of it.
