WATER DOG - The Bible of Retriever Training Richard Wolters understands how exactly to train a retriever. He's now 3 years outdated and we are presenting a new female puppy next week that I cannot wait to begin training as we did with Atlas. The key to the successes discovered by using his book is his focus on "fun" training after 7 weeks and the enforcement of those lessons in upcoming weeks. Best Hunting Dog training manual Tried and true! Obtaining a new puppy, can't think about training it without Drinking water Dog. Richard Wolters makes it clear, if you are not ready to spank, "stop reading the book". As my comments focus on the 1st weeks of teaching a pup, I am convinced that Richard Wolters provides created the "Bible of Retriever Teaching" because he realizes that those weeks after a dog is taken from the breeder at 49 days will be the most critical. I quickly reprimand your dog and then follow-on with the lessons. If the problem persists, I quit and start again afterwards. Richard Wolters understands that the desire will there be, in the dog, to please its owner. It has resulted from the attention paid to the dog in weeks 8 through 12. But under no circumstances let the pup "win" by playing the part of a "sensitive pet dog". I've found that it is critical to develop a stability between punishment and compliment. It is where in fact the pet dog gets "started" and allows the dog to *learn how to learn*. Very easy to follow. Reading two books is better than reading one Wolters is very precise on telling and showing a great way to train a water dog. He is simply correct about starting working out as soon as you bring the pup home and he shows the proper way to achieve success with the pup. Starting working out at 7 weeks can be something that additional trainers discover hard to overcome. Being I use my canines for both drinking water and upland We also read The Labrador Shooting Pet, by Mike Gould. The exterior of the book met my expectations for the . Gould is more exact with training approaches for the retrieve. However, Gould doesn't begin the formal training until the dog's approximatley 6 months old. You will learn from both Wolters and Gould how exactly to train a puppy beginning at 7 weeks old and the correct techniques for schooling. If you want to learn to properly train a hunting pet then browse both Water Dog and The Labrador Shooting Dog. Highly recommend Trained my pet in college using this book.. I highly recommend.
