Awesome but lack a few bits and pieces I love the way she writes, its readable and its own funny! Its great for someone who's new to Beauty and make-up and great to listen to about brands I've never heard of. A few points she made counteracted what she wrote as well. Ie if youre talking about pigmentation one topic will be just great, rather than having to get back to the end to get the pages you need for this issue as the topics fluctuates. Also gave tips for LED therapy for acne and teens when actually perhaps the best assistance is to visit a dermatologist first before forking out so much cash. It would've been nice if she could create more about cosmeceuticals and the difference in those items and those over the counter. Overall this is a great guide nonetheless it would've been great if the contents flowed jointly more nicely as an individual preference. This is the best beauty book that I have read This is actually the best beauty book that I have read. Ie don't spend big money on retinol a in case you have sensitive epidermis, which she wouldnt have known unless she got it herself. If I was a teen this would've been a pleasant birthday present but please do your own research throughly first. It is a great book, and much as an extended version of Cosmo Beauty and Harpers Bazaar where she used to function but written in a funnier way. It's a great book to add to your beauty collection and I've learned a lot too, however the writing contents if you ask me were just a little messy... Or if you are over 30 dont use a foaming cleanser after that in the suggested cleansers for over 30s another page or 2 there's Mario Badescu's foaming cleanser. Ie anyone looks good in a plum lipstick and these are my head to lipsticks for ppl with specific coloured skin or eyes but a few web pages later it said avoid dark lipstick altogether if you want to look young. It is this easy read, lots of hints, recommends a variety of item for all budgets and is certainly funny at times. Five Stars Great book filled with useful info
