Ann Bonfoey Taylor (1910-2007) was a pioneering female airline flight instructor during World War II, was a member of the US Olympic Ski Squad in 1939, competed in tennis at Wimbledon and was accomplished at riding and shooting. She was captured in photos by artists such as Edward Steichen, Louise Dahl-Wolfe and Toni Frissell, and was regularly presented in publications such as for example Voque, Town and Nation and Harper's Bazaar from the 1930s through the 1970s. Recognized among an international jet-setting interpersonal circle as an excellent hostess at her wonderful homes in Colorado and Montana, Taylor also played a leading role as a style icon. In 2008, her extraordinary wardrobe of couture and custom-designed sporting ensembles was donated to Phoenix Artwork Museum. The collection is usually significant for both the quality of the designers and for its depth, as the many examples allow for a thorough appear at each designer's artistic procedure. Selected by Artwork and Antiques as one of the top 100 artwork museum gifts of 2008, Taylor's impressive collection features works by one of the most masterful fashion designers of the 1950s and 60s, including Charles James, Balenciaga, Givenchy and Madame Grès. Style Independent: The Original Design of Ann Bonfoey Taylor features more than 60 full ensembles and accessories offering a comprehensive look at the wardrobe of a powerful and sophisticated woman.
