The perfect community Anyone & everyone discovering intentional community living should go through this book. It's geared to the infant boomer population, that is creating all-new, non-traditional communities going back years of their lives. This era questioned the position quo because they became adults in the 60s and 70s, so that it comes as no surprise that they are searching to redefine how they would like to reside in their elder years. I came across it insulting and a waste of time. Not what I expected I thought it could discuss the various options for group senior living. But how does one find that?" In which particular case, senior cohousing could be your favorite remedy. I tore out that section and threw the publication away. Okay, but better books out now there. She brings up essential questions to guide the reader via an inquiry into what they really want in terms of home and community, and how they are able to achieve their dreams. While she does bring up some valid factors to think about, unfortunately I found most of the publication useless. With exercises, advice to come on about your finances, it really is a great starting point to living the good existence with people you prefer. Group Building Tools specifically helpful. Do it yourself I did nothing like the book, actually I returned it. It was written just like a child's workbook and included no helpful information. The main suggestion was to get data from the web. She addresses all they need to know. Not enough information about finding places more targeted at process. Charles Durrett, Author of "The Senior Cohousing Handbook a Community Approach to Independent Living" Guidance for living the good life with people you like! Not enough information about finding places more geared to process of envisioning a life-style if u do not know what retirement you want but overall I like the book Just a tiny bit too simplistic, but overall I love the book. Will need to have for successful shared living of any sort Really asks the important questions we may not have thought of ourselves. I found the Personality Evaluation & others to accomplish successful living arrangements. Look it up aswell but start by reading Marianne's book. A readable, informative roadmap Marianne Kilkenny has written a readable, informative roadmap for navigating one's method into a "Golden Ladies" lifestyle, if the reader is just starting to investigate the idea, or has done some research, and really wants to proceed to the next level. The book includes a thorough bibliography (supplemented by URLs for several related agencies) and worksheets that--in addition to assisting you on your journey to an interdependently independent lifestyle--will educate you on a good deal about yourself. Well done! Important questions to reimagining home This book comes at a time when 80 million Boomers are entering traditional retirement age. This publication helps people determine/find//or produce what they're searching for, which is not something that many people learn how to do. With many households spread in the united states and friends living across town, it makes feeling to locate a close-knit community of neighbors or housemates to be with for mutual support and companionship. Instead, it's about assisting you make the decision to live in a group environment and preparing yourself emotionally for the move. Marianne Kilkenny's reserve was created to order. If Marianne wrote once more about making a list and updating it, I would scream. If these are your queries, this thoroughly practical book can help you redefine, reimagine and find a deeply supportive home for this stage of your life. My only criticism of the book is that, aside from a small list, the author will not offer descriptions and stories of the numerous housing and community options that happening in the united states and beyond." And most importantly, "Just how many various other people out you can find searching, when you are, for what you are considering and would we end up being much better off carrying it out together? Too many seniors are ill-housed or in way too many instances un-housed because our casing share for seniors is merely ugly. The housing which was used to increase a family group in ?is not the house to age group happily ever after in, forty percent of the folks living in assisted are there inappropriately. Marianne's book asks the question, "Do you even know what you want? What you need? Begin here for senior living solutions We can't look hard enough at this time for appropriate new casing solutions. At least they have a list of sources by the end to assist you explore the options. Three Stars Book okay I am donating it seeing that I do not possess a dependence on it at present.. Marianne's book is very beneficial to help anyone who's wondering if home posting is best for them. Considering through the process and understanding that others are undertaking an identical journey is comforting. You can find quite a few other books out there that discuss alternative housing for seniors, and how exactly to go about finding them. Vital device for researching ourselves & In addition they go into greater detail about the professionals, the disadvantages and what to watch out for.
