This book can be an encouragement to find the blessings in autism. When you read Isaiah 53:3 "He was despised and rejected by mankind, a man of suffering, and acquainted with discomfort. Like one from whom people hide their faces he was despised, and we kept him in low esteem," (Jeremiah 1:5). Mary D. Wasson believes it describes both; hence, proving that children with autism are created in the picture of Christ. It may take years to uncover these beautiful character qualities, but she really wants to encourage other family members to marvel at the wonder and uniqueness of each child with autism. With time, tears of sorrow will turn into tears of pleasure. May you celebrate in hearing your child say, "My Hands, a Journey of Faith— (Psalm 139:14).an inspiring story about her Guatemalan mother as a poverty-stricken kid with a basket full of dreams to reside in America, to an abused wife and mother who was spared thus she could fulfill her purpose, founding a mission in Guatemala.Before I formed you, I knew you, before you were born I set you apart" does that describe Jesus or a child with autism?After a long career working for a Fortune 500 company, God breathed the gift of writing into Mary's About the writer: s lifestyle. She published an inspirational poetry book, Potter's Hand Poetry, while focusing on a biography, Spared from the Abuser'I am fearfully and wonderfully made, your functions are wonderful, I know that whole well" " Mary is passionate about sharing her personal trip alongside her boy with autism. Mary and her family members are actively involved in mission work at the Santa Fe Objective in Guatemala, Central America, the mission her mom founded over twenty-five years back. Mary resides in north Mississippi with her hubby, Mark, and their children, Ethan and Mia Faith. In this trip alongside her son, who provides autism, Christ opens her eyes to the stunning character qualities that kids with autism display and live each day.
