Autism and disabilities advocate Tony Hernandez-Pumarejo knew that there is different things about him early on in his life. He was diagnosed with Asperger's Syndrome, an Autism spectrum disorder at age 3. From child to adult, Tony will discuss how he handled those circumstances, the struggles that he experienced, and how he was able to overcome those challenges. He will also talk about his crucial accomplishments in life so far, hobbies, the problems in the Autism community and much more. An Autism Unscripted Lifestyle talks about the tale of Tony and the issues and life circumstances that he went through which are common and uncommon for a person with Autism. Despite these setbacks, Tony didn't let his "disability" control and determine what he could accomplish in lifestyle. Tony has had the opportunity to overcome existence's issues and has accomplished key lifestyle goals such as graduating from college, getting employment, and being able to fulfill his function of advocate in helping people who have Autism have an improved life. Furthermore, he dealt with situations of bullying, rejection and other struggles in his lifestyle. However, he didn't discover out that that he previously Asperger's until later in existence. As he was growing up, he handled the different challenges that was included with becoming on the Autism spectrum, such as verbal impairment, communication, nervousness, depression and social relationship issues.
