With clear advice and strategies that can be easily implemented in practice, Steve Brown explores various choices and interventions, and explains how experts can manage the behaviour of children (aged 3-18) in the safest possible way, promoting assertiveness and confidence. Providing clearness and insight into this complex subject, this book will allow professionals working with children and young people with ASD or ESBD to use nonphysical interventions with confidence and understand the function of physical interventions since a last vacation resort, within a legal framework.
