Lavishly illustrated with a hundred color photos from the Stuart Weitzman Collection, this new quantity explores the effect of twentieth-century style and culture on the development of women's sneakers from 1870-1980. Famous for his trademark use of unique materials and his creation of one-of-a-kind, "million dollar" shoes for Oscar nominees, American designer Stuart Weitzman's personal collection of antique shoes includes a similarly eclectic range. It is a must-have for all shoe followers. Stuart A. Edward Maeder is the founding director of the Bata Footwear Museum in Toronto. Weitzman may be the founder of the eponymous footwear company Stuart Weitzman.

all wrapped up in great beauty.. Maeder's Walk IN THIS MANNER is a 'must' .. Edward Maeder's take on Footwear from the Stuart Weitzman Collection of Historic Shoes may be the real deal: he marries the history of shoe style excellence with artistry, background, as well as political, sociological and psychological insight, all wrapped up in great beauty. Maeder's Walk This Way is usually a 'must' for anyone endeavoring to keep great shoe making traditions alive, in addition to for the college student of fashion, film or theatrical costume design.! I appreciate that book is in color, with delectable close-ups of the entire collection!
