Fight away any injustice arriving their way and train them to advocate for themselves. Quite a few of the instances included tell of people who didn't know very well what was incorrect, but persevered within their quests anyway. We ought to just learn to use them. And being "in your own world" is an advantage here. This book explains so much about family members who have some of these traits on the Autism and Aspergers scale. It's what they always say, all those losers who are jealous that someone is actually doing something and couldn't end up being bothered to move themselves a bit.Do what you love and make your living of it! I send out everyone hugs and wish you are employing your gifts and enjoy life as it's said to be. We are uniquely gifted. I could give a short method: don't discover them as broken but just like any other child making use of their own specific issues, support their interests, treat them equally with everybody else.
