Next, they follow a honey of a bird and fulfill an awesome Masai warrior. Jack hopes any lions will simply stay away. Before he is able to find out, Annie starts to help hundreds of wildebeests cross a rushing river."Where are the lions?" Jack wonders once the Magic Tree Home whisks him and his sister to the vast plains of Africa. But Jack is about to be very disappointed.

I really enjoyed this book. That is a children's book written for children ages 4-8, but it certainly can be enjoyed by anyone. I would suggest reading them in order. It's pretty pretty. This series is actually the best. Awesome! Both my daughter and younger sister adore this series. The writer has done an excellent job, and you feel as though you were in fact there with the main character. There are too many books away there that convey a sense of hopelessness or despair, without brightness at all -- and even far too many children's books nowadays do this. But this series is written with a sense of happiness and lightness, in fact it is but one of an extended series, all of which have happy endings and a sense of wish throughout. The primary characters are interesting, too. The book is quite fun to read aloud to someone of any age. You will not be disappointed. We love that there are so many in the collection! My four-year-old son is deeply in love with this chapter series! We proceed through 2-3 books a week. Read them to be able to follow along. We loved the lions Jack and Annie showed us. This was an excellent book in the Magic Tree House series. I discover myself looking forward to reading time to see what will happen next, sometimes even more because they don't really want to stop. My boys love this series. Then in 3rd grade he read everyone to me. My hubby reads him a chapter every night... Five Stars! Good product. Fantastic series! It's become a great custom for them, and something they both anticipate. Best children book series ever. Great chapter books - can't fail with any of them. My seven-year-old son loves every one of the Magic Tree House books. :) These are hands down the very best children's books ever written. These are without doubt the BEST children's books ever written. He's determined to read every one of them. A friend suggested it to us since he seemed ready for more advanced reading materials at bedtime. Today I am purchasing them for my nieces. Mary Pope Osborne is normally a spectacular children's author. My child carries these books everywhere and also reads them aloud to her kitties, turtle, and lizards. Start with #1 and just continue. I read every one to my child when he was in kindergarten. Each book references the prior book. We have thoroughly enjoyed all the books in this series, so far. Wonderful books filled with history and facts too! This book is, yet again, another definite recommendation! We are looking forward to meeting the polar bears with Jack and Annie in the next book. My 7-year-old loves Jack and Annie! I think I enjoy them even more! Great read! Granddaughter loves these books! Well, the book rocks! because I discovered stuff from it I also like it because I like lions they're cool.
