

Jack Wears Contact Lenses and Glasses... JUST LIKE YOU!

A day in the life of a bilateral aphakic child

Story by Juliette Vignola

Illustrated by Helen Dwiyanti

Juliette S Vignola

Jack Wears Contact Lenses and Glasses... JUST LIKE YOU!: A day in the life of a bilateral aphakic child

continue reading

Spend a time with Jack, a bilaterally aphakic kid who wears contact lenses, glasses, and sometimes a patch. as he calls them! LIKE EVERYONE ELSE! Samantha Wears a Contact Lens and Patch... This publication follows on the incredible success of the author's Watch as he even cooperates with eye drops (or "Eye Tickles" Opt for Jack to the ophthalmologist'). This publication may not magically change every child right into a fully cooperating angel. But it will help your child to learn that he/she isn't alone, and that other children have the same encounters with contacts, glasses and patching. seat, watching as he cooperates with the attention doctor and with his mom as she inserts and removes contact lenses. A day in the life span of a unilaterally aphakic kid "NOT Scary"s office and sit in the "s first book, ". Although many of the problems facing aphakic kids are universal, if the child is bilateral or unilateral, additionally, there are many differences. This reserve incorporated a great deal of parent responses regarding bilateral children. There are also more images of the ophthalmologist's office visits, at the requests of pediatric ophthalmologists who have reviewed the books. This book would work for children ages 1-8.

continue reading

