there are very genuine and growing problems. Kids throughout the developed globe are suffering: instances of obesity, dyslexia, ADHD, poor behaviour and so forth are all increasing. Sue Palmer, a previous head instructor and literacy professional, has researched a whole range of trouble spots, from poor diet, insufficient exercise and rest deprivation to a variety of modern difficulties that are having a major effect: television, computer games, mobile phones. One in six kids in the developed world is diagnosed as having 'developmental or behavioural complications' - this book explains as to why and shows what you can do about it. And it's really not simply our willingness to diagnose provides increased; This combination of factors, added to the increasingly busy and stressed life of parents, implies that we are developing a toxic new generation. TOXIC CHILDHOOD illustrates the latest research from all over the world and provides answers for worried parents concerning how they can protect their own families from the issues of the modern world and help ensure that their children emerge while healthy, intelligent and pleasant adults.
