

The background is a light gray with a fine, woven texture. On the left, a dark gray tree trunk with white highlights branches out into a large, dense canopy of red and pink heart-shaped leaves. In the upper right corner, a thin, wavy black line extends upwards, ending in a small red heart. In the lower center, a girl with dark hair is depicted in a dynamic, jumping pose. She is wearing a bright blue dress with a white collar and white socks with black shoes. Her arms are outstretched, and her legs are bent as if she is leaping or dancing. The title and subtitle are written in a black, cursive script, centered on the right side of the cover.

Told simply without keeps barred, it engages the reader throughout. You will see what is most precious & most sacred may be the love we share... This love lasts permanently - Susan Squellati Florence This book is the story of four – an eight-year-old – It tells the real story of the loss of a daughter to cancer, but you'll find nothing maudlin or self-pitying about any of it. It really is poignant and thought-provoking." The reader will share laughter and tears with a resilient family and question at the maturity of Nadia, who started her treatment kicking and screaming and finished it with maturity beyond her years, accepting and comforting those around her.s experience dealing with cancer, an 11-year-old sister coping with her grandparents while her mother spends just about any minute in hospital with her child in dread and anguish, and a father struggling to keep carefully the family members together. Theft of a Lifestyle is an inspirational reserve. Joan Rosier-Jones, Author

Thank you for sharing Everyone grieves in their own method and you also are no different. Thanks a lot for being prepared to share that with us all. The tale flowed and the poem by the end was a tear jerker. Highly recommend reading this The depth of love Great book cherished it you're a brave woman, Nadia a gorgeous kid and The Segedin's a "special" family. It had been a privilege getting allowed into those treasured and personal times. Brenda tells her tale with a gentle contact.. 'Theft of a Lifestyle' gives the hint that Nadia was taken too soon.. written from the heart.. It's the tale of her child Nadia who lost her battle with cancer, aged just eight years. It's uplifting. Many thanks for persisting. Yet the story isn't maudlin. Such a difficult story for a loving mother to inform.. God bless you all always A must read A beautiful story. Parents who visit Starship Children's Hospital will find solice here. Uplifting quotes by respected people from background begin each chapter. Written in an exceedingly engaging, refreshing way, the reader is privy to a genuine account of the ups and downs of their struggles including Nadia's emotional highs and lows. Those touched by cancer and those not. Bless you Brenda for sharing Nadia around. On Kindle. ISBN 9780473277680. In addition, you captured thus well, what our staff here call "the tumor journey", with most its ups and downs, successes and failures, triumphs and heartbreaks. Brian Morris Courageous Real Love Story I have just finished scanning this book which We could not deposit. David Cancer Society This is an inspirational tale in which we start to see the courage of Nadia facing the challenges that Hodgkin's disease brings - a kid who grows in maturity beyond her years, and how her loving family members supported her and coped with their own emotions until the end and beyond. It is indeed a love story. This book deserves to be read and appreciated by way of a wide audience. It certainly is not a rose-coloured accounts, and I believe that this gives it a power which is helpful to others who're going through similar situations. In addition, it is very evident that the family's strong faith helps carry all of them through. Brenda, thank you so much because of this. Your courage has helped me in coming to terms with my wife Alison's ongoing struggle with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.. xx Any parent of a kid with cancer will be helped by this beautiful book Congratulations to graduate Brenda Segedin, whose first publication has been published. The small changes to the book make it extremely 'readable'. First, due to the poignancy of your story. Needless to say, knowing so many of the "characters" made it special anyway, but it was common in its message. 9780473328443. And, you have already been able to provide readers on a similar journey with practical assistance, recognition of how they will experience, and how they can cope. Finally, on a professional level, I was impressed with the grade of your writing - if that's everything you can produce simply because a first time author, I better put my name down for another one. Well performed! To create this book and share the knowledge of losing a kid is amazing but then you go a step future. I was shifted to tears by the honesty of Brenda as she tells of her journey with Nadia, Vianney, Louis and the extended family.
