

The background of the cover is a top-down view of various DIY makeup ingredients and tools. It includes several small glass jars containing powders in shades of orange, yellow, red, pink, purple, and green. There are also larger bowls with similar colors. A silver spoon is shown with a pile of reddish-brown powder on it. A red tube of product is positioned diagonally in the lower-left quadrant. A whisk with orange residue is visible on the left side. The overall aesthetic is clean and focused on natural, handmade cosmetics.

In addition, I can tell she really focused on ingredients that were easy to supply. I was hesitant to purchase this book and the materials because it's a large initial expenditure (I spent $50 to get makeup making products, but I can make almost everything in the book. I must say however that I think someone along the line (publisher?) has done her an excellent disservice when it come to the Kindle edition of the book. Many of the fractional measurements appear to be images instead of actual text. I have implemented Marie on her behalf blog for quite some time, and I simply adore her passion for diy cosmetics, skincare, and soap. I've searched for books on at-home aesthetic formulation and actually found hardly any and those that I did find looked lacking. It has rendered much of the book worthless to me as I just cannot read the tiny, fuzzy photos that describe the fractional amounts. Have been waiting almost all year because of this AMAZING book Let me just say how thrilled I am to leave this review. (Example submitted with review) Consequently I'm unable to review this reserve predicated on its make-up formulas, as I really cannot read the amounts and consequently unable to make the products ? I think the best solution is they ought to republish utilizing the correct format and provide it free of charge to those folks that have currently purchased it. They're very small & The mascara is usually a dried out mass that darnkens but will not improve. When this publication arrived today, I was giddy with delight as I flipped through all of the pages to look at her new recipes. Having made my very own makeup for a few years, I am not a novice but if you are, no worries. now wouldn't that be amazing ladies? I was introduced to Marie's work via her blog page and had just began building homemade soaps and lotions. I look forward to trying more of these recipes out and perhaps being free from the beauty industry. Now that might not seem like a big deal to you, but that is clearly a slippery slope as it's often tricky to not use a bunch of chemicals to achieve long lasting lipstick and mineral makeup. Kindle version is looking for help I really enjoy Marie's blog page and look ahead to each new post. I don't wish to make plenty of batches to perfect the formulas. The majority of the quality recipes are limited by 10 or less elements which also makes these quality recipes very beginner/spending budget friendly as who wants to buy 20 different substances to create lip balm? I want to say as anyone who has generally struggled to make lipstick color selections, getting the freedom to sit there and tweak my own lipstick color to my liking is definitely a casino game changer. For a more experienced diyer, you may use some of the quality recipes to tweak or test out a few of your own quality recipes. I, myself, have been inspired to play with a couple additional things that I am not really currently using. In conclusion, I highly recommend this reserve at a delicacy for yourself or a loved one and I can't await future books from Marie :) These quality recipes work! Marie makes a concerted effort to use as many natural ingredients as you possibly can in her quality recipes, yet she also develops recipes that are very "professional" and "high end" in nature. As most people, I try to balance products that have ingredients I understand and know aren't bad for you and products that work! She's a genuine talent and I'm happy she's chosen to share it with us... I also found that my face looked great during the day. I was worried I would invest and become disappointed with the outcome and have each one of these weird ingredients. Nevertheless, makeup making proved to be successful! The advice and instructions were clear and useful. I'm in my mid-30s with some large pores and great lines showing. I came across the dry mineral make-up was too dry and settled in my imperfections an excessive amount of. However add that dried out power to the liquid recipe and magic! I loved the protection. I already had most of the oils and such from making soaps and lotion which means this was makeup specific supplies). I did feel that the long-put on lipstick was a little bit dry: I had to be sure my lips were moisturized before trying to get it to work. The colour is ok but it accentuates my skin pores. It may be me, as I others experienced good results based on reviews. Not really me! I utilized both carmine, brown and crimson oxides, and a mica for shimmer. In the future I will order ultramarine to permit for some more awesome tints. With my store bought makeup I experienced to reapply each time I was going to go somewhere. I treasured the creamy recipe...experienced like it was doing great things to my lips and providing color!The way that Marie approaches skin care in the book is actually nice...she is giving you enough recipes to do a complete cleansing, moisturizing, and makeup routine all DIY. In other words, they work!.. There is a plethora of history info on ingredients and techniques to enable you to feel very comfortable beginning with scratch in developing your personal products at home. This is the perfect book! So fun too!.. This is the perfect book! fuzzy (yes, even though I make the font size larger because it's an image, not text). Marie's publication is a treasure! You can find obvious directions on formulating and blending colours, different options to choose from if you prefer vegan dishes, and she makes YouTube movies to correspond with stuff in her book so that you can observe what she's in fact doing. Her site, Humblebee and Me, offers oodles more recipes for you yourself to make and precious information you will need for formulating your own cosmetic and personal maintenance systems. If you're looking into making your own products, search no further! Marie's book and website are you need. But end up being warned... I would really prefer a creamy mascara to proceed in a tube.this can be a serious addiction! I found this book to end up being very helpful. I've sought out books . Beautifully written, great recipes and you also get to learn a lot about differnet ingredients. Good Good ideas Mixed results with recipes I really like the idea of this reserve. I purchased substances and made the mineral makeup, primrose oil, and mascara. I really like the primrose oil, but my results with the make-up are disappointing. She is witty and smart and her personality can be reflected wonderfully in her writing.. I did find a recipe from an online site and am happy with the results, however, not the reserve recipe. The mineral makeup is just ok. I have mature epidermis and the mineral make-up looks unnatural. I simply don't feel this way with this makeup. Purchased mineral makeup looks good on my pores and skin. I bought this reserve so I would have solid formulas for makeup. Most of the ingredients you are likely to find locally, but if not, she's an extensive set of stockists and suppliers by the end of the publication for customers all around the globe. But I'm back again to searching the web for makeup quality recipes to try.We also tried both her long-wear and creamy vegan lipstick quality recipes. It's not a lotion soaping and craft publication it's a makeup Great book Excellent I love how simple this reserve is and the descriptions of everything is held simple and flowing. The balms and lotions are an easy task to make and the publication is written in a manner that it is possible to follow easily along with being able to follow without difficulties. Five Stars loved this book, therefore happy I ordered it and excited to get started making my own cosmetics. :) Useful and easy to follow. Great Great book, recipes actually work Great book! I've serious medical issues and stay away from exposure to harmful chemicals. In about an hour I was able to make a concealer, make-up, and airbrushing powder.
